

PUBLIC LECTURE SERIES

Malignant Accountability

Yael Tamir

President of Shenkar College, Ramat Gan, Israel former Minister of Education, State of Israel

Wednesday, March 20, 2013
7:00 PM - 9:00 PM
Auditorium 1180, Bahen Centre
40 St. George Street

In democratic societies, it is important that public institutions be held accountable for their performance. But once political distrust of public institutions takes hold, it can unleash new forms of monitoring and measurement that distort institutional purposes, corrupting the practice that they were meant to control and improve. These dynamics are especially evident in the field of education, where their implications for the future of our democracies are also especially troubling.

